FAIR Health Consumer provides free medical and dental estimates and educational tools directly to consumers to help them understand their health benefits.

---

Why I recommend FAIR Health Consumer Resources:

- They are an independent, national nonprofit known for providing fair and neutral information.
- They use the data from FAIR Health, which manages the nation's largest database of privately billed health insurance claims.
- Their data includes more than 51 billion private health care claim records and more than 51 billion Medicare claim records for over 10,000 services in all areas of the US.
- They keep their cost information current, updating it on their website twice a year.
- Their Consumer Portal provides free estimates for the cost of thousands of medical and dental procedures.
- Searches can be conducted by type of service, body part procedure, in-patient, and even "total treatment" cost that outlines the various services that could be provided for the specific treatment needed.
- Their medical transparency tool includes in-network vs. out-of-network pricing.
- They offer insurance education tools for consumers, including surprise billing information and insurance basics.
- While the site does not list costs by provider, it is a good starting point for consumers to understand estimated costs for procedures they may need.
